

The Memory Project at North Kingstown High School, under the direction of Art Teacher Lauren Gueli, will be exhibiting the portraits of children living in orphanages in Syria.

The Syrian children, all who have few things to call their own, were presented these portraits that our students created just for them....” to feel the love and kindness from a foreign country through the universal language of art.”

Copies of the portraits (captured by Robert Silvera, photographer) will be on display at the North Kingstown Library (100 Boone St, North Kingstown, RI) during the month of October.

Special thanks to all students who participated in the Memory Project
